Ives reminisces about life at Eastern almost 60 years ago

MIKE BURKE
Staff editor

When Burl Ives returns to Eastern for his benefit concert Thursday night, one thing won't be different when he went to school here in the late 1920s. Charleston is "always a hell of a place to get to," Ives said from his California home Tuesday. Ives, originally from Hunt, Ill., was a student from 1926 until 1930 at what was then Eastern Illinois College. He said he used to "get on the train and hitch a ride" to school, but he knew of students who used to get to Charleston in boxcars on the Rock Island Railroad. "I've ridden in a boxcar but not to get there (Charleston). It's a poor way to travel," he said. Ives said getting to towns which don't have an airport is difficult today, and this makes things somewhat of a burden to him now. "It's a drag, really, to travel today. Unless you're going to Chicago, or New York or Atlanta, you're in trouble. I'd rather just pay the fare and get there," he said. Ives said he has been back to Charleston "four or five times" since he left school 56 years ago. His recent return was to receive an honorary degree from Eastern at last year's May graduation ceremony.

He returns Thursday to promote the EIU Foundation fund-raising project, "Make Room for Art." The project's goal is to raise $300,000 for the building of a 20-room art studio on campus.

Tickets for his concert, at 8 p.m. in McAfee Gym, are $9.50 for reserved floor seats or $7.50 for unreserved balcony seats and can be purchased at the Union Box Office.

When asked what songs he is likely to sing at the concert, Ives casually says, "Won't know 'till I get out there."

"I've been doing this for a long time now. I've got it (his act) honed down to a rather fine point," he continued. "But I still have the liberty to move from point to point however I want."

While pausing occasionally to eat a peanut, once stopping to explain the noise, Ives talked of his days at Eastern. He will be the first to admit he wasn't the most dedicated student.

Ives originally wanted to be a football coach, but he said it "was not a driving ambition. It was more or less something to do." Majoring in "manual arts," he said he took much the same classes other football players took—courses like "carpentry, wood-working, things like that."

Ives said the Eastern football team was very good

Calendar model calls appear false; females told to be leery

MIKE ZURAWSKI
Staff editor

Four Eastern women said they received phone calls from a male student asking them to pose, either clothed or in the nude, for an apparently non-existent calendar.

Seniors Dawn Bukes and freshmen Cathy Johnson, Stacey Collignon and Laura Gilbertson said they were phoned by a male student who claimed to work for Eastern publications on the evening of April 15.

Although the story from each individual varies slightly, the caller is alleged to have told the women a picture was selected from The Warbler, Eastern's yearbook, and they would be paid between $200 and $250 and .25 to .50 for each calendar sold, if their picture was chosen.

The women were asked to meet the caller in the Buzzard Hall's main foyer Wednesday afternoon. The caller failed to show for the arranged meeting.

Three of the women said the caller used the name Bill Johnson, but the fourth said he used a different last name she could not recall. However, the name Bill Johnson does not appear on any Eastern student list.

Bukes said she received a call explaining the calendar and asking her to pose "however I wanted for some money. It sounded legitimate, so I came."

Bukes said she asked the caller several questions

Plans begin for building shanty-towns

By DAVE MCKINNEY
Staff editor

Eastern may soon have shanty-towns all its own if plans being considered by Student Body President Floyd Akins and members of EISCAP actually materialize.

"We've learned how to build them," Akins said Wednesday. "I think it'll be pulled off."

But just when seems to be an open-ended question.

On Tuesday night, Akins was at a meeting of Eastern Illinois Students Concerned About Peace where groundwork was laid for the shanties to be built.

Earlier that day, Akins said he approached Mark Haines, Eastern's director of arrangements, to see if the South Quad would be open for shanties. Akins said Haines told him no because of the conflict with Celebration and Little People's Weekend.

EISCAP President Spencer Grimshaw said there wasn't agreement within the organization as to when the best time to begin on the shanties would be. Some said Monday, others sooner, he said.

"We'll know tomorrow," he said late Wednesday. "Everyone in EISCAP wants it because others have tried talking to the Foundation before, and the Foundation has ignored them."

Akins said he was unsure of whether backers would wait until Monday and that he had talked to some backers wanting the shanties up before the weekend.

Eastern President Stanley Rives refused to speculate on what action the university would take if shanties were built before the weekend.

"I've told the Eastern News before that I don't believe in dealing with hypotheticals," Rives said. "We try to look at a situation before making an assessment."

When asked if force would be used to remove shanties, Rives replied, "It would depend on the nature of the act. If it were peaceful and didn't disrupt the educational process, our response would likely be minimal. If the protests weren't peaceful and were disruptive we might have to consider some action."

Akins, who will appear before the Foundation Saturday with Grimshaw and Student Senator Darrin Buczkowski to lobby for divestment, has promised a peaceful protest.

Wary of the arrests of some 60 anti-apartheid demonstrators eight days ago at the U of I, both Grimshaw and Akins said they intend to prevent any backers from disrupting the Saturday's Foundation meeting.

Despite resolutions approved by both Eastern's Faculty and Student Senates that urged divestment, the Foundation has stood by its policy to allow companies adhering to the Sullivan Principles into its portfolio.

When asked by the News to disclose current holdings with South African ties, Foundation officials refused. Last October's portfolio showed approximately $230,000 worth of holdings.

Foundation Vice President Jim Roberts said those critical of the group's refusal to divest are poorly informed and will probably not influence the Foundation.

Roberts, who toured South Africa at the government's request, also dismissed the Student Senate's resolution condemning the Foundation.

"Eastern's senate represents a minority of students based primarily on poor turnout at elections, and I think (senators) are poorly informed," Roberts said.

"We're basically opposed to shanty towns and to disinvestment," said Roger Wooten. "I think they should allow the system to continue to work because within the last year we have witnessed major progress there."

Illinois officials receive pay hike

CHICAGO—The Illinois Compensation Review Board voted today to grant raises of 4.5 percent to the state's top-ranking officials and members of the Legislature in July, with an additional 5 percent increase to follow in a year.

But the actual pay raises will be much greater. The percentages will be applied to increased base salaries that were proposed previously by the board and approved by the General Assembly last year, but have not yet taken effect.

Salary increases for such officials and lawmakers cannot go into effect during the term of office in which they are approved.

For example, Gov. James R. Thompson, who currently draws $58,000 a year, would begin receiving a salary of $88,825 in January if he is re-elected. The $88,825 salary includes a previously adopted base of $85,000 plus the 4.5 percent raise to take effect July 1.

Other constitutional officers who would receive hefty raises under the measure are the lieutenant governor, secretary of state, comptroller, treasurer and attorney general.

Salaries proposed by the board go into effect unless they are rejected by both chambers of the General Assembly, which can also require an across-the-board reduction.

Chicago rabbi defines kosher

CHICAGO—Hundreds of Jews each year keep the unofficial Passover hotline at the Chicago Rabbinical Council ringing with questions on everything from Jean Nate bath oil to kosher cat chow.

With Passover beginning tonight, Rabbi Benjamin Shandolov said, calls to his office increase by the hundreds from people wanting to know what's kosher and what's not. One person even called to ask about kosher cat chow.

"I had one guy call me from L.A. wanting to know what to feed his cat," Shandolov said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "I told him to put him on a table-food diet—Whatever food he has on the table that day and hope the cat likes it."

"I wouldn't be exaggerating to say that the calls are coming in faster than we can tally them," added Shandolov, explaining that daily calls to the council increase by as many as 400 just before Passover.

Casey baker promotes Tribbles

CASEY—Thomas Hannon believes the tiny chocolate chip cookie he perfected in his kitchen is ready to take the big bite out of the nation's $13 billion sweet snack industry.

"All we've done is miniaturize the most popular cookie in this country and make it snackable," said Hannon who will begin nationwide distribution of his new Tribbles this summer with production estimated at 1.8 million pounds monthly.

The crunchy cookies—some with mint peanut or malt added—are not much bigger than the ordinary chocolate chip. They sold well in grocery candy aisles during 1985 test marketing in Wisconsin.

We've stepped out from the crowd," said Hannon.

Gramm-Rudman act questioned

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court was urged Wednesday to uphold a law requiring a balanced federal budget by 1991 because the deficit is "a growing cancer that may soon become inoperable."

The justices, refereeing a major constitutional confrontation between congress and the White House, heard two hours of arguments over the Gramm-Rudman act.

About two dozen members of Congress, including those who sponsored the legislation, listened in the crowded courtroom.

A decision is expected in July.

Several justices voiced doubts about the validity of the law's central provision aimed at forcing automatic cuts in the deficit.

But Lloyd N. Cutler, who defended the law, referred to the nation's spreading red ink as "a growing cancer that may soon become inoperable" and imperil the nation's economic health.

Cutler, who was the White House Counsel in the Carter administration, represented the comptroller general, whose office is the focus of the case.

The comptroller general, appointed by the president for a 15-year term and removable only by Congress, has the key job under Gramm-Rudman of determining deficit-reduction levels.

The comptroller general, Charles Bowsher, heads Congress' General Accounting Office, a watchdog agency that audits federal programs.

A special three-judge federal court ruled Feb. 7 that Gramm-Rudman breaches the separation of powers between the executive and the legislative branches because of Bowsher's role. The panel said the law, in effect, empowers an officer of Congress to perform an executive function.

Solicitor General Charles Fried, the Reagan administration's top courtroom lawyer, urged the justices to uphold the lower courts ruling.

AIDS risk by needle punctures rare

BOSTON (AP)—A study of needle punctures and other accidental exposure to the blood of AIDS patients has found that the spread of AIDS infections in hospitals is extremely rare, even during direct blood-to-blood contact.

Researchers at the Centers for Disease Control found that just two of 983 health-care workers exposed to AIDS patients' blood and other body fluids went on to develop AIDS virus infections. Only one of these two clearly got the infection from the hospital exposure.

The researchers described their findings as reassuring. Compared to hepatitis B infection, they wrote, "the risk of HTLV-III-LAV (AIDS virus) infection to health-care workers exposed to the patient with AIDS appears to be extremely low."

The one clear case of infection was a woman health-care worker in New York who accidentally jabbed herself deeply with a contaminated needle during an emergency procedure on an AIDS patient. Two weeks later, she developed flu-like symptoms that can occur in the early stages of AIDS infection.

Later blood tests revealed that her body had begun to produce antibodies to the AIDS virus, but while the woman has swollen lymph nodes she has not developed AIDS.

"It was a tragic accident," said Rachael L. Stricof, an epidemiologist with the New York State Department of Public Health.

Dr. Eugene McCray of the CDC described it as the first documented case of occupationally acquired AIDS infection among U.S. health-care workers. However, Dr. Stanley H. Weiss of the National Cancer Institute disputed this claim and said a case he reported last October was the first real case.

Eastern cities chilled by arctic air

By the Associated Press

Arctic air expanded its grip on the East on Wednesday, shattering century-old temperature records from the Great Lakes to Florida, killing tender fruit tree buds and dumping up to 18 inches of snow.

Schools were closed in parts of New York state and snow and slush sent many vehicles skidding off highways there and in parts of northeastern Pennsylvania where snowplows had been put away for the season.

Orchard owners hired helicopters, fired up blowers and smudge pots and sprayed water to protect their crops.

For the second day in a row, low temperature records for the date were tied or broken at more than 50 cities in 14 states from Michigan to Florida, the National Weather Service said.

Many cities had their coldest readings on record for so late in the season, including the latest freezing temperature on record at Birmingham, Ala., which hit 30 degrees.

Tallahassee, Fla., dropped to a record 23 degrees, and Miami chilled to a record 57.

Chicago's low of 25 tied a record on the book since 1873.

Akins pushes Foundation to detach itself from King

DAVE McKINNEY
Staff editor

Student Body President Floyd Akins will ask the EIU Foundation Saturday to divest more than just its investments in companies doing business in South Africa.

Aside from being at Saturday's foundation meeting to lobby the group to sell those investments, Akins will try to convince the group to divest itself of an award bearing Martin Luther King Jr.'s name.

"King stood for peace, period," Akins said Wednesday. "The foundation is giving out money in his name, and that's not what King stood for."

The Martin Luther King Jr. scholarship is sponsored by Eastern's chapter of the American Association of University Professors and comes with a $250 stipend, administered by the Foundation.

Akins said the move was prompted by the Foundation's failure to divest its investments in question, despite resolutions urging divestment from Eastern's Student and Faculty senates.

Protesters have taken issue with the findings, last estimated at $230,000, because they say such investments represent an implicit endorsement of South Africa's racial caste system, apartheid.

Foundation officials, when asked by the News, refused to release an updated version of just how much is tied up in companies earning profits from South African business.

"I was hoping I could get nominated for the scholarship just so I could turn down," Akins said.

Foundation Vice President Jim Roberts, called Akins' viewpoint on the scholarship "hypocritical" and doubted the Foundation would act on the matter.

"We're just talking about an infinitesimal portion of the funds earned by the Foundation," Roberts said. "It's ridiculous to believe the King scholarship is somehow tainted because of that."

AAUP President Kandy Baumgardner defended the scholarship, saying the principle associated with King's name would always endure, but she conceded a bit of hypocrisy on the matter.

"It is a bit hypocritical; I can see that in several ways," she said. "I respect Floyd, and it never occurred to me there would be a conflict."

With only two active AAUP members on campus, Baumgardner said the fate of the scholarship could well rest on Akins' actions.

"I don't know what we'd do," Baumgardner answered when asked what would happen if the Foundation no longer administered the scholarship money. "We may just get rid of the award, entirely."

"We've been struggling to keep AAUP alive and may just feel we don't want the hassles," she said.

Neither this year's recipient of the award, sophomore Calvin Malone, nor last year's winner, Jennifer Soule, could be reached for comment Wednesday.

The award was established by AAUP at Eastern shortly after King was assassinated in 1968. Since then, the Foundation has administered the scholarship award to an Eastern student who best exemplifies King's ideals.

Reagan asks for help from allies in fighting terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan, preparing for a summit in Tokyo with America's major allies, called on the Arab world on Wednesday to join the West in the fight against terrorism, saying nations must work to "eliminate this scourge of civilization."

In a speech to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Reagan also said that last week's raid on Libya shows "no one can kill Americans and brag about it."

Libyan-sponsored terrorism against Americans continues, "we will act again," he declared.

On the eve of a 12-day trip to the Far East that includes the seven-nation economic summit in Tokyo, Reagan said he plans to appeal to U.S. allies to act in concert against Libyan terrorism.

"Unilateral response is not enough," Reagan said. "It must be dealt with forcefully and collectively."

The issue of terrorism "undoubtedly will be a topic of discussion in Tokyo," Reagan said in a speech that his aides trumpeted as a major scene-setter for the upcoming summit.

Reagan depicted the struggle with Libya as a battle against the government of Moammar Khadafy, and not against the Libyan people or the rest of the Islamic world.

"Those who condone making war by cowardly attacks on unarmed third parties, including women and children, are but a tiny minority," Reagan said.

"Arab nations themselves have been forced to endure savage terrorist attacks from this minority."

Reagan said that Khadafy's expectation of support from other Islamic nations "strikes me as hypocritical" in light of Khadafy's alignment with the Soviet Union.

"Nowhere is the slaughter of Moslem people greater than in Afghanistan," Reagan said. The Soviet Union is Khadafy's principal arms supplier.

"Let no one mistake this for a conflict between the Western democracies and the Arab World," Reagan said, adding: "We hope and pray the Arab world will join with us to eliminate this scourge on civilization."

Activities offered to kids

By DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Government editor

It may look like the students are getting smaller this weekend, but they're not.

Lots of youngsters will converge on Eastern this weekend to take part in "Little People's Weekend" Friday and Saturday.

"I'm looking forward to a good time, lots of fun and lots of young people enjoying Eastern," Committee Chairman Paula Capone said.

This year's "Little People's Weekend" theme is "Come Play With the Panthers at E.I.U."

Eastern's University Board will kick-off the activities Friday with the movie "E.T." The time for the movie will be announced later.

At Celebration '86, the National Residence Hall Honorary Association and Eastern's Residence Hall Association will sponsor a pretzel booth Friday through Sunday, Capone said.

Other activities include:

- A free breakfast from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. in Taylor Hall food service.
- A basketball clinic with Eastern's basketball players from 10 to 11 a.m. in the McAfee North Gym.
- An obstacle course geared toward young children from 10 to 11 a.m. on the South Quad.
- A cheerleading clinic geared toward young children from 1 to 2 p.m. near the North Quad by McAfee Gym.
- Swimming from 1 to 2:30 p.m. in the Buzzard Pool.
- A softball game from 2 to 4 p.m. near the campus pond.
- A magic show from 3 to 4 p.m. in Phipps Lecture Hall.
- A dance at 7:30 to 11 p.m. in the Subway.

Copyright law forces RHA to change weekend theme

By JANET SIWICKI
Staff writer

Possible violation of a copyright law forced the Residence Hall Association which organizes "Little Peoples' Weekend" organizers to change the weekend's theme.

The committee's theme was switched from "Come Play With the Muppets at EIU" to "Come Play With the Panthers at EIU," following denial to use the muppet logo on T-shirts.

According to a letter from Ruth Gruhin of Muppet creator Jim Henson's legal business affairs department, "Henson has an exclusive license agreement for his trademark."

The Eastern Panther will be displayed advertising Little People's Weekend—scheduled for Saturday and Sunday—on residence hall windows, T-shirts and promotional posters.

Debbie Zollner, a Residence Hall Association member, said she wrote a letter to Henson asking his permission to use the trademark as "a basic courtesy."

But Gruhin said she does allow some non-profit requests, but the sale of T-shirts cannot be controlled by Henson Associates.

"We thank people when they call and are aware of the fact that this is a protected work," Gruhin said.

Gruhin said she does not get many requests to use the logo on T-shirts, adding that she does not believe the logo is used without permission, either.

The use of the logo is "an infringement which we could go after," Gruhin said.

"I try very hard to allow people to use it in limited purposes in ways we can control," Gruhin said.

Student lobby ought to head to Washington

Wednesday's student government excursion to Springfield to lobby against the Gramm-Rudman Act is, we hope, a precedent for such actions in the future.

Gramm-Rudman, if approved by Congress, would be devastating to higher education. Its proposed cuts in federal aid to college students come at a time when states are already bearing 94 percent of educational funding.

If America needs anything in this era of intense political, social and economic stress, it's better education. For the federal government to pawn off more and more of that immense responsibility to the state level is short sighted and inexcusable.

But even students who are not inclined sometimes to look at the bigger picture should be glad that their interests have, in some small way, been represented to state lawmakers.

Gramm-Rudman and the entire issue of educational funding is something that could hit home, right here, soon.

What better way to gain some kind of control over the situation than to take the floor and present our case?

That's what 10 student government members did Wednesday, and for that, we are grateful. But, in order to be truly effective, this lobbying effort has to go beyond Springfield.

Why not take it a step further and go to the source: Washington. Our U.S. representative, Terry Bruce, and our U.S. senators, Paul Simon and Alan Dixon, have all proven themselves defenders of education. If our student leaders are serious about speaking their minds on Gramm-Rudman, the logical step would be to contact those representatives, express their concerns, and get advice on how to make their voices heard.

A letter-writing campaign to members of Congress, a campus-wide petition opposing Gramm-Rudman which could be sent to Capitol Hill, even a bus trip to lobby not in Springfield, but in Washington—all of these are possibilities which student government members should consider as a follow-up to their impressive debut as students' rights lobbyists.

We took to the Capone vault story just like a hooked fish does to water

A journalism instructor came up to me the other day and asked if I felt like a fish.

"A fish?" I said, a little baffled.

"Yeah, a fish," he said, pretending to reel in a fishing line. "You guys at the paper really swallowed the hook on that 'Al Capone's vault' business."

The "Al Capone's vault" business, of course, was an internationally televised fiasco in which Geraldo Rivera—the journalist who wasn't even good enough for ABC's laughable news show "20/20"—hosted the exploration of an underground tunnel which, supposedly, contained remnants of the notorious Chicago mobster.

And, indeed, we had swallowed the hook, right along with TV viewers and major newspapers across the country. Even the Internal Revenue Service was taken.

If you missed the show, I envy you. Between shots of crewmen tearing down the cement walls that had sealed the vault, we got to see Rivera giving us the history of the mob, interviewing mob experts and playing with machine guns—all set to dramatic background music which, I guess, was supposed to sound mob-like.

This went on for two grueling hours. And when they finally got into the vault, there were none of the skeletons or hidden stashes of money that had been predicted. Just some 60-year-old liquor bottles, which an infinitely clever Rivera quipped about turning in for a deposit. Then, for some bizarre reason, he broke into a verse of "Chicago, My Kind of Town."

On Monday, the day of the broadcast, The Daily Eastern News ran a page 3 story about what the explorers were expecting to find in the vault. The next day, we ran a story on page 1 about how they hadn't found anything but bottles, and about how Rivera had started singing.

In hindsight, it's clear that, aside from exposing Rivera as an idiot, this "news story" that we played up for two days had very little news value to begin with.

So, why did we think this story was such a big deal? Frankly, we didn't. But we thought you thought it was a big deal.

You see, every day at 4:30 p.m., the executive editors get together to go over the stories the staff has written and the stories the Associated Press has sent over the wire, and we decide which stories we want to run the next day and what pages we want them to go on.

In journalism, there are some things everyone

Off the record:

Kevin McDermott

pretty much takes as fact and doesn't argue about. We all agree, for example, that Geraldo Rivera is an idiot.

But "ranking" the paper—deciding what stories should go on what pages—is usually the toughest part of the meeting. Everyone has his or her own opinion about what is important enough for page 1 and what should get buried next to the classified ads. The ability to weed out the hot news from the cold is called "news judgment," and, as an exact science, ranks just a notch above astrology.

One of the factors we try to consider while ranking the paper is how interested the readers will be in a given story.

While we were ranking Monday's paper, a few editors said they had heard a lot of talk going around campus about the Capone thing. That sounded like reader interest, and that's when we decided it belonged on a prominent spot in the paper.

Chomp! Hook, line and sinker.

Every once in a while, something like the Capone vault can pretend to be a fantastic page 1 story when, beneath the hype, it's actually a few paragraphs on page 9.

Sometimes the disguise works and fools everyone except the readers. I know the whole campus was talking about Capone's vault, but I also know people were talking about how silly all that prominent coverage of it looked in the News. How do you win?

Meanwhile, one campus event which was not as widely discussed—but was more relevant to Eastern students—never saw print.

When I got an angry message from a person connected with the event, I knew right away what had happened: The event article had gotten buried somewhere in the ranking process, perhaps pushed off the page by the Capone vault or some other meat little story in wolf's clothing.

So, to Al Capone's latest victim: Sorry, but the stuff happens. In our business, as in yours, we have to stray from the safe path and take a chance on a promising vault now and then. And sometimes, the cash just isn't there.

Divestiture movement alive and well, says U of I protester

Often, strong and vocal protest is the only way to shake a stodgy and inert institution. This week, the East Now Coalition took strong actions which led to the arrest of 60 protesters at the University Board of Trustees meeting last Thursday (April 10). These actions have helped focus statewide attention on the issue of divestiture from South Africa. We have put the Board of Trustees on notice that we will not be able to talk the issue into oblivion. We moved beyond "acceptable" means because in the last eight years, these "acceptable" channels have proven ineffective. Last June, we presented a 10-page report and four hours of testimony in favor of divestiture. We also attended a "retreat" with the board, at which we cordially discussed the issue of divestiture. We have written letters, won referendum elections and done everything possible within the system, yet the board has remained intransigent. It is obvious that these "acceptable" tactics have not worked. This is unfortunate, for we are far more comfortable with them, and would prefer to utilize them. If the trustees actually responded to reasoned debate, as they claim they do, we would be in an entirely different situation. We had no desire to be arrested; we only wanted the board to vote in favor of divestiture. Yet we felt strongly enough about the issue that we were aware our actions might precipitate arrest, and knowingly put ourselves in that situation. Several of the trustees have said that our actions only serve to anger the board and have not helped our cause. They argue that they cannot be forced into divesting. One should not expect the trustees to say anything different. It is in their interests to discourage these types of actions precisely because they are so powerful. Facts have shown that politicians respond to powerful protest. They have done so at numerous universities, most recently Northwestern and Columbia. Our actions have registered an important success. The divestiture movement on campus is stronger than it has ever been. Coverage of the protests has spread throughout the state and even nationally. It has put the trustees on notice that divestiture is anything but a dead issue in this state. The university's response to our actions indicates just how powerful they have been. Chancellor Thomas Everhart has adopted the time-worn strategy of dividing and conquering a powerful enemy. He has accused three of us of breaking an "agreement" which allowed us to enter the board room to present the motion for divestiture to the board if we did not disrupt the meeting. After the first 17 people were arrested (they had also presented the motion and been ignored) these three entered the room and presented the motion, but the board abrogated its responsibility by refusing to vote on it. We waited several minutes to ensure that no vote would be forthcoming. When it became apparent that the university had acted in bad faith, we concluded that disruption of the meeting was justified. Apparently, the university has singled these three people out for harassment in order to divide us. They know that if they attempt to deal harshly with all 60 of us, the backlash would be tremendous. As a result, they have created a fictional division to allow themselves to focus upon a smaller group. This type of harassment is in bad faith, and reflects poorly upon the university. The university also acted in bad faith by responding violently to a peaceful protest. One protester suffered nerve and shoulder damage as a result of excessive force by the police. The university has repeatedly stressed to us their desire that we remain peaceful and non-violent. We have upheld that goal; unfortunately, the university has not. We, along with other students on this campus, must make it apparent to the administration that students cannot be intimidated at the will of the people. As students, we will not allow ourselves to be divided, and we will oppose the violence they have inflicted. We must register our opposition to the university's techniques of harassment with the office of President Stanley Ikenberry. The university would like the community to view us as criminals. In fact, we have simply taken a strong and vocal stance against a system of racism which commits crimes against its people every day—a system in which hundreds of people, averaging age 14, have been killed in political violence in the last year. Our actions seek an end to the university's complicity with that criminal system. We know, and the community knows, that the real criminals can be found elsewhere. —This column was written by Ankur Goel, a U of I senior who was among 60 pro-divestiture protesters arrested on April 10 at the U of I. The column ran in the April 15 edition of The Daily Illini.

Crossview:

The Daily Illini

Our turn

Those wanting divestment:
Use facts to argue your point

Discussing divestment with Domini and McVeigh of Franklin Research, Inc. is a great start (Monday's front page article). However, discussion of the ethics of our EIU Foundation investments should not be limited to reporting a reactionary opinion on the part of some groups on campus. In this respect, the article discussing ethical investment alternatives with Domini and McVeigh is commendable. In order to judge correctly as a member of the campus community, I feel the need for more investigative reporting. I'd like to hear from the EIU Foundation and find out what companies with holdings in the Republic of South Africa are in question, and even hear why they denied the divestment requests last fall. How the EIU Foundation invests its assets is important to the whole EIU community, and to whether it is financially and ethically appropriate for the EIU Foundation to divest, more information is needed in a public forum, in my opinion. I like to see the News interview some pertinent members of the EIU Foundation. Perhaps interviews could be conducted with faculty and students in the College of Business that would shed light on the reasons why the Foundation refuses to divest. I ask the groups that demand immediate divestment to come forward with a plan that includes specific suggestions for the EIU community to discuss for alternative investments with revenue equivalent to the present funds generated by the U.S. companies with holdings in the Republic of South Africa.

Money shouldn't come before people in South Africa issue

Editor:
As a concerned student of life, some items are very important to me. One of these items is the problem of South Africa. And the hell of it is that money, our watchword of the decade, should have very little to do with it. There is something going on down there that won't stand the light of day. Any system that enforces racial inequality must have some serious problems. The first problem that comes to mind is that Botha and company seem to put policy and tradition in front of people. If I were denied a job because of my color and had to live in a shack because of it, I would be bummed, too. And then there is this problem of apathy. And this problem, unbelievably, is especially apparent in civilizations that have prided themselves in the developments of democracy and freedom. Money will be lost in divestment; this scares corporations, as it may scare you. I wonder if monies lost appear in front of the human conscience. Watching television is fun these days, especially concerning the problems in South Africa. I saw a film clip of a white student holding a guitar case over the heads of two black students. As they were being whipped, the white student was being whipped too, but he didn't seem to mind. They were just sitting down, that's all. I have never been whipped by a cat-o'-nine tail before—have you? This might sound queer, but someday I would like to sit down with my kids—if I ever have any—and talk about South Africa. If they ask me, "dad, are you against apartheid?" I would hopefully say yes. If they ask if I did anything about it, I wouldn't hopefully have to say yes—I know I would say it.

Tim Estep, Jack Smith and Leslie Garner participate in a panel Wednesday night to answer questions about homosexuality. Nearly 80 people attended the meeting.

Panel states gays don't differ from anyone else

By CINDY BRUSIC
Staff writer

Gays are just like everyone else said a Homosexuwhat II panel member Wednesday night in Pemberton Hall.

We are "no different from anyone else", said panel member Leslie Garner, a graduate student. The panel was designed to break down some of the old stereotypes.

Pemberton Resident Assistant Theresa Gluszczyk said the audience consisted of "over 80 people".

Gluszczyk and RA Tina Poszich were coordinators of the panel.

The audience, consisting mostly of women, were mature with their questions, Gluszczyk said.

"I learned some stuff", said Shelly Penninger, a member of the audience. "I'm glad I came."

Most of the audience expressed the same feelings as Pen-ninger. "Very much worth while," Sharon Armbruster said. "It cleaned up some gray areas."

Poszich said she "couldn't have asked for better questions and answers."

Estep who was a panelist at Homosexuwhat I, said Pemberton was "more subdued than Carman."

Coordinator of Homosexuwhat I, John Garner said Pemberton went better because "the male ego wasn't present".

Unlike straight people the gay population doesn't have "the malefemale pattern" to follow, Sanders said. They have to develop their "own model."

A popular question asked by the audience was about why they chose homosexuality. It is not a choice, "but a different way of acting", Sanders said, who is presently working with gay students.

When asked why Garner liked other women and not men her response was "it's natural for me to be with women. Why do you prefer men?"

Fleming donates $25,000 to L.C. Lord Scholarship

By ROBIN KNOWLES
Staff writer

Eastern recently received a $25,000 donation from the wife of a Distinguished Alumnus Award winner, said Charles Titus, director of alumni services.

"At this time, I wish to make a contribution of $25,000 in memory of my husband, D. F. Fleming, to be used in support of the Livingston C. Lord Scholarship Fund," Mrs. Doris Fleming said.

"It would please him, I know, to help another student," said Mrs. Fleming, a Burlington, Canada resident.

Fleming, who died in 1980, received an honorary degree from Eastern in 1948 and the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1974, Titus said.

Fleming had been a member of the faculty at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., for 33 years, where he served as head of the political science department, Titus said.

He retired in 1961 as a professor of international relations, but continued as a Fulbright lecturer at such schools as Cambridge and Princeton.

Fleming, a nationally known scholar, was once praised by the late Bernard Baruch, adviser to several presidents, who told President Truman that Fleming "knows more about international relations than anyone else I know," said an article in The Tennessean.

Fleming wrote 10 major books on diplomacy during his career. One of the books, "The United States and the League of Nations," was used for four decades as a basic university text, noted the Nashville Banner.

Fleming was also a foreign affairs editor of the Nashville Tennessean and foreign affairs commentator on Nashville's WSM radio, Titus said.

Mrs. Fleming said that when her husband attended Eastern from 1910-1912, Eastern's first president, Livingston C. Lord and his staff had "a great influence on her husband."

Library plans annual book sale

Students looking for used books at reasonable prices might check Booth Library's Third Annual Book Sale.

The sale will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, in the Library's R&R Room (103).

Jane Lasky, director in charge of the sale, said a wide selection of novels and paperbacks will be available at "very reasonable prices".

"Some of these books are donated by people who are in book clubs," said Lasky adding that they are in fairly good condition.

In addition to books and records; note paper, prints, and cards will be for sale.

Money collected from the book sale will go directly into an "all purpose gift fund," said Wilson Luquire, dean of library services.

Luquire said that the money in the fund is used strictly for library needs, such as repairs and improvements.

The R & R Room, room 103, is located just off the North Lobby of the library.

Council considering new course proposals

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Staff writer

The Council on Academic Affairs will consider course proposals from four departments at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

Two of the requested courses are, Recreation and Leisure Studies 3355, "Therapeutic Recreation for the Physically Disabled, Socially Deviant and Socially Deprived," and 3350, "Therapeutic Recreation for Pediatrics, Developmentally Disabled and Mentally Ill," said department chairman Ewen Bryden.

"Unofficially, they are for a new option," Bryden said. The two courses are "an expansion of an existing area in therapeutic recreation."

The courses will also help in accreditation, Bryden said. Although the department is accredited overall, "it's not a definite, certain thing" that students will be accredited in therapeutic recreation. The new courses will ensure that they will be, Bryden said.

An additional course that may be added is Physics 3260, "Circuit Analysis."

"It will serve mostly pre-engineering students," said physics instructor Leonard Storm.

Currently, Eastern has about 150-200 pre-engineering majors, many which transfer to the University of Illinois, where this course is required, Storm said.

After transferring, these students are a bit behind in their courses, Storm said. If Eastern offers the course, students could take it here before transferring, he said.

Another requested course is Speech Pathology and Audiology 4990, "Special Topics in Speech Language Pathology," which "would allow us to present new topics as they develop in the field," said department chair Jill Nilson.

The course will not necessarily be the same every semester. As more research in the field is done, the course will be changed, Nilson said. The proposal would allow students to retake the course after any changes.

The department is also requesting four courses be dropped and four courses be added to replace them.

The old courses are "outdated. They're not reflecting what's currently important in the field," Nilson said.

The courses to be changed in speech pathology and audiology are: 3300, "Voice and Articulation;" 4758, "Phonological Assessment and Remediation;" 3500, "Organic Disorders of Speech;" and 2250, "Elementary Statistics".

The proposal would replace them with these speech pathology and audiology courses: 2700, "Phonological Development;" 3700, "Phonological Assessment and Remediation;" 4761, "Voice Production and Disorders;" and 4750, "Neurology and Embryology".

Also proposed by the speech pathology and audiology department are the renumbering of one course and the renaming of another.

The department wants to renumber Speech Pathology and Audiology 2140, "Speech Science," to 3215. The renumbering would change the class from a sophomore-level course to a junior-level course and would drop the number of credit hours from three to two, Nilson said.

Nilson said the change is requested because juniors who take the class tend to do better than the sophomores because they have more background material from other classes.

The department wants to rename Speech Pathology and Audiology 2110, "Structure and Function of the Speech and Hearing Mechanism," to "Anatomy and Physiology of the Speech and Hearing Mechanism."

The proposed name "more accurately reflects the content of the course," Nilson said.

In other business, the CAA will consider a request from the special education department that three courses previously dropped be reinstated to allow graduates who were not certified in these areas previously to come back and pick up the courses now.

The courses requested to be reinstated are: Special Education 3250, "Observation of Individuals Labeled Mildly/Moderately Exceptional: Learning Disabilities"; 3260, "Observation of Individuals Labeled Mildly/Moderately Exceptional: Educable Mentally Retarded" and 3280, "Observation of Individuals Labeled Mildly/Moderately Exceptional: Behavior Disorders".

Fund-raising efforts for new art studio have been boosted

By MIKE BURKE
News editor

Efforts to raise the $300,000 needed for a new art studio will be stepped up after Burl Ives' "Make Room for Art" concert, said an EIU Foundation official.

Fund-raising efforts will be given a boost by the concert, said Chuck Ross, the Foundation's director of development, who is heading the "Make Room for Art" campaign. The Foundation will be intensifying efforts to find one major contributor for the project, he said.

"Make Room for Art" is the second capital improvement project under the Foundation's Tenth Decade Campaign to raise $5 million in five years. The "Brighten O'Brien" campaign to pay for stadium lights around Eastern's football field was the first.

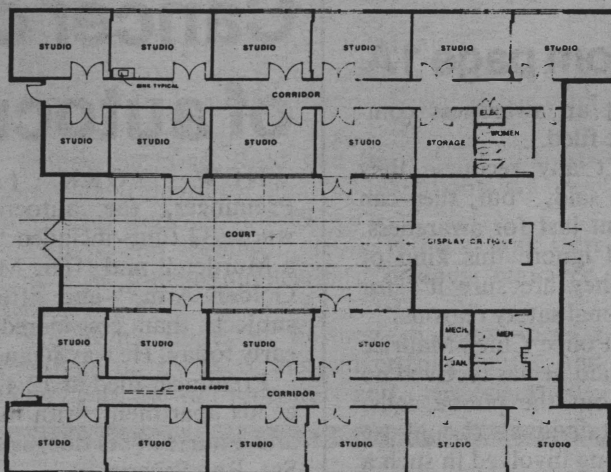

The second project and plans for the art studio were originally announced late last year. At that $300,000 is needed for the second capital improvement project of the EIU Foundation, "Make room for Art". Gene Dillow, of Bradley, Lilkins, Dillow and Drayton, Decatur, has submitted this preliminary work on a 20-room art studio, tentatively planned for the corner of Ninth and Johnson streets.

time, five proposed sights for two separate 10-room art studios were being discussed.

Since that time, the university has released plans for a single building to contain 20 separate art studios that will be built around a courtyard.

Gene Dillow, the architect who designed the Tarble Arts Center on Eastern's campus, did the preliminary work on the art studio plans. He is a partner in the architecture firm of Bradley, Lilkins, Dillow and Drayton in Decatur.

at that time. "We didn't lose a game in '28," he said, adding that he was selected all-conference that year playing left guard.

Eastern also tied for the "Little 19" conference championship that year. The conference was made up of 19 small Indiana and Illinois colleges, such as Bradley and Millikin.

Ives' coach, and "the grand old man" of the Little 19 at that time, was Charly Lantz, for whom Eastern's gymnasium is named.

Football helmets then were "hard as the ground, and not very light, either," he said. Ives couldn't recall the number he wore on his jersey.

He still considers himself a football fan, and said the Los Angeles Raiders is currently his favorite team, but that he only has time to catch an occasional Monday night game because he often performs on the weekends.

But after a trip to the East Coast, Ives soon lost interest in football and never graduated from Eastern.

"I went to see the ocean and that was my downfall," he said. Ives returned to get a job in a Terre Haute, Ind. radio station and eventually worked his way back to New York and entered show business.

Ives eventually won an Academy Award in 1958 for best supporting actor in the film "A Big Country."

"People often ask me why I do what I do, and I don't think there is anybody who does exactly what I do. I tell them, 'For the same reason a dog takes after a rabbit: Instinct.'"

I don't think I have much sense, but I have good instincts," Ives said.

Ives is now recuperating from two eye surgeries—the most recent being three weeks ago. He said the doctors wanted him to remain in California and advised him not to come to Eastern for the concert. "But I'm fine. I'm an optimist," he said.

Ives said he can either go into rehearsal for a Broadway play, work on a pilot for a TV show in Panama or put together another concert tour.

"I'm getting damn tired of sitting around," he said.

Recount confirms student election winner

By AMY CARR
Staff writer

Results of the vote recount in the at-large district of the April 16 student government elections proved Wednesday that previous results were correct.

The recount was requested after freshman Curtis Dawson lost the election by three votes.

Mark Christensen won the last available at-large senate seat with 574 of the 2,013 votes cast, while Dawson received 571 votes.

The ballots were sent to computer services where they were counted twice. The results remained the same, Elections Chairman Steve Hogan said.

Hogan added that Dawson said at the time he requested the recount that if the results were proved correct, he would not protest the matter further.

In other business, Student Body President Floyd Akins said that the university has looked into the possibility of installing a sidewalk extending from Lincoln Ave. to the existing sidewalk by Old Main.

This research was done as a result of a bill submitted by the senate asking that such a sidewalk be installed.

However, Akins said that after talking to Verna Armstrong, vice-president for administration and finance, such a sidewalk does not appear to be feasible.

The installation of the sidewalk was approved by the State, providing that the University signs an agreement stating that if anyone was injured on or near the location of the sidewalk, the University would be liable, Akins said.

The agreement would also increase University insurance by $18,000, Akins said.

He added that the administration plans to continue researching other landscape options for the area.

In addition, the senate committee gave their final reports stating the semester accomplishments, and stressing possible goals for future committee members.

questions about the publication but because he could answer them so well, she believed the offer was legitimate.

Herman said the caller told her he met with 30 other females April 17, but Wednesday was used as an alternate date for about 5 people who could not make the earlier time.

Collignon said the caller gave her a phone number, but when she called, she received a disconnected recording.

All four girls said they plan to file an official complaint against the caller.

Campus Police Chief Tom Larson said he has received no complaints from other individuals about similar calls.

Larson said he is unaware of any criminal charges that could be taken against an unidentified person, but he noted that an awareness complaint could be filed.

"There isn't any recourse they can take," he said, "but, they can file a complaint just for awareness. People should ignore this kind of thing unless they are sure it's for real—for personal safety reasons."

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson also said he has received no complaints about the phone calls, but he thinks individuals should use caution in getting involved in such a scheme.

"It it were my friend," he added, "I would tell them not to get involved."

Niether Larson nor Johnson were sure what charges could be taken against such a person because no contractual agreement had been entered and no actual fraud had been committed.

Cancer cause for death of autocratic film director

NEW YORK (AP)—Otto Preminger, the autocratic director whose 37 films included "Anatomy of a Murder," and "The Man With The Golden Arm," and often dealt with subjects than considered taboo, died early today. He was 80 and had cancer.

Preminger died at 12:42 a.m. in bed at his apartment, with his wife, Hope and a nurse at his side, said police chief Sgt. Ron Severin.

He was known as an innovator, challenging the film industry with movies like the 1953 "The Moon is Blue," which was opposed by the Catholic Church; the 1954 "Carmen Jones," a modern-day adaptation which starred Frank Sinatra and depicted narcotics use.

He also appeared in five films, including "Stalag 17," in which he portrayed the dictatorial commandant of a German prisoner-of-war camp.

Preminger was born Dec. 5, 1905, in Vienna, Austria, and earned a law degree there in 1928. He came to the United States in 1935 and the following year he made his first U.S. film, "Under Your Spell."

He also was on the faculty at Yale Drama School until 1940, and then became a stage director on New York, winning the Critics Choice Award and Full Circle Award for Broadway productions.

"The Blue Moon," an adaptation for the Broadway bedroom comedy, ran without the Motion Picture Code Seal of approval because its screenplay contained the words "virgin" and "pregnant." The Catholic Church gave it a "Condemned" rating. But Preminger cleaned up at the box office, according to the 1986 book "Inside Oscar."

Preminger's autocratic style as a director caused some actors to rebel.

Publication board approves Summer News editor in chief

by DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
government editor

Eastern's Publications Board Wednesday approved junior Bill Dennis to be editor in chief of The Summer Eastern News.

Dennis, currently administration editor of The Daily Eastern News, said, "I feel accepted. Eastern is a good school to come to if you are a transfer student).

"You can't help but feel a little left out sometimes," the junior transfer from Peoria said adding that he is looking forward to putting out a good summer newspaper "comparable to The Daily Eastern News."

Outgoing Warbler editor in chief Nancy Yamin reported that of the 6,500 yearbooks received, 5,200 have been distributed.

Yamin said she is pleased to have "80 percent of the books gone."

Although distribution will continue, Yamin said books will be distributed on graduation day, May 10, so students can pick up their books in Buzzard building before they leave for home.

In other action, John Fehrmann, editor of the Vehicle, reported that sophomore Bob Zordani will take over as next fall's Vehicle editor.

The spring Vehicle was distributed last weekend, Fehrmann added.

In other business, Student Publications Coordinator David Reed gave a progress report on the Heartland magazine.

He said the stories for Heartland magazine, a newly created publication aimed at east central Illinois readers, have been completed and ads have been sold.

"So far it's in good shape," Reed said.

About 3,000 copies of the magazine will be printed with two colors and distribution is slated for after finals week, Reed said.

In new business, Reed said he will ask the Apportionment Board for about $5,000 to obtain a copy camera for student publication use.

Also, Glenn Robinson, from Kansas, will start June 1 as student publications' business manager, Reed said.

Robinson's duties as business manager include advising the business and advertising staffs and supervising the full-time staff and their operations.

Libya predicts U.S. will attack

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP)—A Libyan official claimed Wednesday the United States and Israel are planning terrorist actions in Europe that will be blamed on Moammar Khadafy's government as a pretext for future military attacks on Libya.

The information came from intelligence sources in "friendly states, including European countries," Information Minister Mohammed Sharafeddin told reporters. He gave no further indication of his sources.

Sharafeddin said the attacks would happen "within the next hours," an Arabic phrase that means "in the near future."

"This information stresses that Mossad (Israeli intelligence), together with American intelligence, want to conduct operations in Europe and they want to put the responsibility upon the Jamahiriya (Libya)," Sharafeddin said.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said: "The CIA is not causing terrorist incidents in Europe."

CARBONDALE—Eastern's baseball team finalized on five consecutive walks by Southern in the top of the third to win the first game of a doubleheader 15-1.

The second game was called for darkness in the bottom of the third, resulting in a 2-2 tie.

The Panthers (21-20-1) are now 8-2-1 against Missouri Valley Conference teams. Southern falls to 17-2.

With the score tied 1-1 in the top of the second inning, an RBI double by junior Terry Keigher and a sacrifice fly by senior Kevin Smith to score Keigher gave the Panthers a 3-1 lead.

After an RBI single by junior Mike Rooney and a two-run double by senior Terry McDevitt in the bottom of the third, Southern walked three Panthers to load the bases. Three consecutive bases-loaded walks by the Panthers gave Eastern a 9-1 advantage.

In the seventh, the Panthers added six more after a fielding error put runners at first and second. Junior Kendall Snyder hit an RBI sacrifice fly before senior Dave Snider walked.

Rooney then cracked his fifth home run of the season over the left field fence to make it 13-1. Smith followed with a two-run single for the final score.

The Panthers combined for 15 runs on 17 hits and no errors. Junior Dave Goodhue (2.45 ERA) got the pitching win to go to 5-3 on the season. He allowed six hits in five innings and had one earned run.

Senior Sam Light retired all six batters he faced to finish out the game for Eastern.

McDevitt led the team in hitting with four while Rooney and Keigher each had three.

McDevitt got the ball rolling in the second game with a single in the first inning. He moved to third after a Smith sacrifice bunt and Torricelli's ground out. Junior Bernie Holland singled to score McDevitt.

Eastern took a 2-0 lead in the third when Royer hit an RBI double with two outs to score McDevitt. Torricelli was tagged out at home in an attempt to score from first.

After Saluki runs in the fourth and early in the seventh to tie the game, Southern kept it going in the seventh to load the bases with one out.

Eastern pitcher senior Mike Steinkamp then struck out one batter and forced another to ground out to end the inning and the game was called for darkness.

Sophomore Eric Hillman started the game and allowed four hits and one earned run before Steinkamp relieved him after five and one-third innings. Steinkamp allowed three hits and one earned run.

Eastern concludes its conference schedule at Northern Iowa this weekend.

Eastern athletics receive $795,510 budget for '86-87

By DAN VERDUN
Sports editor

The 1986-87 Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic budget was finalized and released Wednesday by the athletic department.

The operating budget is $795,510 for the 1986-87 school year.

Eastern Athletic Director R.C. Johnson indicated that the funding for the Panthers' 17 intercollegiate sports would remain the same as in the present 1985-86 budget.

"This was done for basically three reasons," Johnson said. "First of all, last year's student referendum made a substantial increase in our budgets.

"Secondly, from the $80,000 (football) guarantee money we received from Kansas, about $50,000 went to all (the) sports ($30,000 was used to cover the football team's expenses.) Finally, this has been a year of zero inflation rate," Johnson said.

Consequently, Johnson said "it was our thinking that we would freeze their (teams') budgets and strengthen up the Panther Club a little bit."

Student fees, which increased from $458,375 in 1985-86 to $477,760, account for the bulk of the funding for the athletic budget.

The student fees support the band which is budgeted for $22,760, and pick up about 60 percent of the remainder of the athletic department's expenditures. That marks about a five percent increase from last year's figures.

The entire $795,510 allotted for the intercollegiate programs is divided between administrative expenses and the sports' operational expenses.

With this year's individual team budgets remaining frozen, changes were made in the administrative expense side of the overall budget.

The administrative expenses allow $2,665 for the cheerleaders and Pink Panthers. That marks a $140 increase for the cheerleaders and a $135 decrease for the Pink Panthers from last year's budget.

Other phases of the administrative expenses receiving increases were:

- Concessions ($1,000 increase to $27,000)
- Home management ($2,000 increase to $23,000)
- Promotions ($1,000 increase to $6,000)

As part of the sports budget, every sport is allotted funding for travel, food, equipment and other expenses.

All Eastern sports will receive the same amount of funding as they did a year ago.

Football remains Eastern's most expensive sport, receiving $180,000 next fall.

In addition, the football team's pre-season camp expenditures will be funded by the $9,100 separate guarantee from Illinois State, with whom the

Coaches content with breakdown of budget

By JOHN STROUD
Associate sports editor

While most Eastern coaches would like to have more money for their programs, they said they understand the financial situation and are happy with the budget breakdown.

The breakdown for each sport remains the same for 1986-87 as it was last year for a total sports budget of $539,100.

The consensus of six Panther coaches was that the money allotted to their individual programs will basically be used the same as in past years. Travel expenses, equipment and facility improvements are the primary uses of the money.

The football program heads the budget with the largest amount to be received. Coach Al Molde will have $180,000 to work with for the '86-87 football season.

"It's an adequate amount," Molde said. "You can't waste any of the funds, but it covers what we need."

"It (the money) is basically for our operating expenses related to running the program."

Women's Basketball Coach Bobbie Hilke noted that Eastern's athletic budget is not "high" in comparison to other Division-I schools, but she is happy with the $49,750 she will receive.

"It's not tremendously high, but it's a good figure," Hilke said. "We try to run a top-rate program with what we have."

Hilke pointed out that some schools in the Northeast, which are moving from Division II to Division I next year, will have women's basketball budgets in the $75,000 area to cover extra travel expenses.

The April 16 issue of The NCAA News includes a story concerning three New York schools—Canisius, St. Bonaventure and Niagara—which are being forced by the NCAA to move their women's basketball programs to the Division-I level or drop the sport.

To meet extra costs, Canisius raised their women's basketball budget by $15,000 to nearly $75,000, not including salaries.

"We're not extreme in our budgets for a Division-I school," Hilke said of Eastern. "Nothing we do at Eastern is extravagant."

Hilke said, "All of our budget goes to travel—to compete in the Gateway (Conference), put uniforms and shoes on the players and a portion goes to recruiting." Hilke said she attempts to recruit in the Midwest "to cut costs."

Coach Rick Samuels' men's basketball program will receive $95,000. Samuels said he plans to "establish a purchasing rotation in terms of equipment. This includes replenishing shoes, basketballs and partial purchase of new practice equipment.

"I would always like to have more," Samuels said. "But I understand the situation the athletic department is in. It's an adequate amount to do what we need to do."

First-year softball coach Janet Marquis would like to use part of her $24,500 to buy a video system to tape games so the team can view them afterwards. New uniforms are also in store for next year's Panthers.

"We were told earlier that everything would be the same," Marquis said. "Any money you can get you take. Facility-wise I think Eastern is great."

Women's track and cross country coach John Craft wants to use part of his $25,700 (cross country and track total) to "see some new faces."

"We're going to go to some different places—go north and south (See COACHES, Page 3B)

Eastern

Panthers open their 1986 season.

"Illinois State asked us to change the game," Johnson said. "The only way to do that was with the money guarantee because of the early scheduling date of the game (August 30)."

Men's basketball ranked as the second biggest recipient. The team will receive $95,000.

The budget also includes guarantees generated from men's basketball that amount to an additional $20,000. Eastern will get guarantees from University of Illinois ($8,000), the Nevada-Reno Wolf Pack Classic ($7,000) and Wisconsin ($5,000).

Basketball remains as the top recipient of funding in women's sports. The women's basketball team will get $49,750 for next season.

The women's basketball team will receive separate guarantees from the University of Hawaii ($1,500), Missouri ($2,000) and Northwestern ($500). That additional $4,000 will be used to pay the expenditures of the team's travel expenses to Hawaii.

"This is a one-time deal for the women's basketball team that will remain with the sport. We told the team that they had to generate the money on their own by playing some people," Johnson said in reference to gaining the $4,000 guarantee money.

But in addition to receiving guarantees, Eastern must also pay out $49,500 in guarantees to other school for their travel expenses to come to Charleston to play the Panthers in both men's basketball and football.

The men's basketball guarantees are: Illinois Tech ($2,000), Northwest Missouri ($2,500), Millikin ($1,500) and Colorado ($4,000).

The football guarantees are: Southern Illinois ($7,500); Northern Iowa ($8,000); Western Kentucky ($10,000); and Winona State ($14,000).

Concern was expressed over the $14,000 guarantee to Winona State, a Division-II school which Eastern hosts on the Nov. 1 Parents' Day.

"We needed a November opponent," Johnson said. "We had to go out and buy one to be very candid. It was similar to when we went out to Kansas last fall."

In regard to the possible increase of student fees in the future, Johnson said, "We don't foresee an increase for a few years. Gate recipients have stabilized the last couple of years."

However, gate recipients fell from the 1985-86 budget total of $100,000 to $95,000 in this year's budget.

Yet, Johnson believed Eastern had the capabilities to raise the gate recipients back to the $100,000 mark.

Johnson also indicated that the guarantee money from the NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament generated by Cleveland State and the National Invitational Tournament money generated by Southwest Missouri was not included in the 1986-87 budget.

"It's not there because we want to wait for the exact figures," Johnson said. "The NCAA money should be somewhere in the neighborhood of $50,000. The NIT money should be between $2,000 and $3,000. We should know by June, late June."

In other proceedings, the board unanimously passed the reinstitution of giving athletic awards, probably in the form of a letterman's jacket, to student-athletes beginning next fall.

"We decided upfront to just give initial awards to around 200 student-athletes the first year," Johnson said. "With the jackets costing in the area of $80 each, we're talking about around $16,000."

Johnson added that the money received from the NCAA will probably be used to begin this program.

Men netters drop contest at Vincennes

CINDY BEAKE
Writer

Eastern's men's tennis team had a disappointing 8-1 loss to Vincennes Junior College Wednesday as they prepare for the Association of Mid-continent Universities' tournament play in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The match on Wednesday was the second dropped by the Panthers to Vincennes this season. They lost the first at Vincennes 6-3 earlier this season.

"I was disappointed that they (the Panthers) weren't able to raise their level of play," coach John Bennett said.

Senior David Brown, the lone victor Wednesday, also happens to be the best player in the Panther lineup.

Brown, in the No. 6 singles position, defeated Brian Scott 7-6, 6-2 to raise his personal record to 17-2.

That record reflects his 6-1 record when Eastern went to Florida on a spring trip.

"He (Brown) played average today, but he didn't hit the ball as deep and hard as usual," Bennett said.

In other singles play, the top five singles players lost.

Junior John Suter, in the No. 1 position, was defeated by Daniel Winzenried 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

"Suter had a decent match, overall. He played a tough player," Bennett said.

In the No. 2 position, junior Mark Matijasevich lost in straight sets to Troy McMullen 7-6, 6-1.

"I felt good in singles. My serve has been on all this week," Matijasevich said.

Freshman Jon Anderson, in the No. 3 position, also lost in straight sets 6-1, 6-1 to Scott Zent.

In the No. 4 position, sophomore Steve Gumplo lost 6-1, 6-1 to Vincennes' Pat Cavanaugh.

Greg Abella defeated the Panthers' junior Don Carstens 7-5, 6-0 in the No. 5 position.

In doubles action, all three Panther duos were handed losses.

Suter and Anderson, the No. 1 pair, were beat by Winzenried and Guy Pamsey in three sets 6-4, 4-6, 1-0 (the third set was decided in tiebreaker fashion because of darkness).

Freshman Craig Mentzer and Brown, in the No. 2 duo position, were defeated 6-0, 6-1 by Vincennes' McMullen and Zent.

In the No. 3 doubles position, Matijasevich and Carstens were defeated by Cavanaugh and Scott 7-6, 6-4.

Women netters set for Gateway tourney

MICHAEL CLARK
Writer

Eastern's women's tennis team is out to play the spoiler role this weekend in the Gateway Conference tournament at Indiana State.

The tournament will feature both singles and doubles play and the individual matches will be grouped in brackets.

The conference teams in the field include Bradley, Drake, Illinois State, Northern Iowa, Southern Illinois, Southwest Missouri, Western Illinois and Wichita State.

Eastern geared up for the conference tournament last weekend at the SIU-Edwardsville Invitational which was set up in a "flighted" fashion.

"This tournament gave our players a chance to compete individually," Richard said. "This will give us good experience for the conference tournament."

Richard said that the lady netters could be the sleeper in the tournament field.

"We probably will not get any seeds," coach Gail Richard said. "But I think we are capable of pulling some upsets in the conference tournament."

During the SIU-E Invitational, Sally Stout was able to capture two impressive victories.

Stout was defeated in the first round but rebounded to win two consecutive matches before losing in the consolation championship round.

In the other division, junior Lauri Zupanci also advanced to the consolation championship match but was tripped up by Mauria Coch of SIU-C.

"We have proven throughout the season we can compete with any of the teams," Richard said. "If we peak at the right time and if are players get a good draw, we can get some victories."

The conference tournament will be the final appearance for seniors Lori Lehman, Diana Durkee and Sally Stout for the lady netters.

"Our three seniors will get one last shot," Richard said. "I feel the whole team is capable of getting wins."

little bit more," Craft said. "Not that there isn't any competition around here. You can find competition wherever you go. We just want to see some new faces."

Assistant track and cross country coach Tom Akers said most of his and coach Neil Moore's budget of $27,200 (track and cross country) will go toward travel expenses.

"We've been told earlier that we weren't going to get any increases," Akers said. "Everyone wants more."

Akers noted wear and tear on the track due to the facility being open to the public in addition to the IHSA State Championships being held here each year as a maintenance factor.

The outdoor track will be resurfaced this summer as part of the Brighten O'Brien project, but in the meantime "it (maintenance) comes out of our pocket," Akers said.
